WSDOT’s Communication Response
The Standard Toolbox

We use tools to ‘leverage’ the media.

- Established 24-hour EOC
- Coordinated media relations across regions
- Updated press releases and media briefings to coincide with media cycles
- Constant web and 5-1-1 updates
- Listserv and e-mail alerts sent directly to public and industry (freight)
WSDOT Communications Response
The NEW Toolbox

We ARE the Media! In today’s Web 2.0 world, WSDOT is the content provider. The media no longer dictates the relationship with the customer.

- YouTube.com
- Flickr.com
- www.wsdotblog.blogspot.com
- Podcasing (on hold)
- Facebook
- Twitter
- Gov Delivery
So Why Twitter?
It’s a two-way conversation

WSDOT alerts and traffic updates are sent to subscribers and received on their computer, cell phone, or mobile hand-held device. This enables the user to adjust their travel plans or routes accordingly.

- @wsdot - main account
- @wsdot_traffic - Puget Sound traffic reports
- @wsdot_passes - mountain pass reports
- @wsdot_tacoma - Tacoma traffic

And here are a few actual tweets ...

“Learn more about the planned I-90 bridge closures in May and July: http://cli.gs/JZgaMQ.”

“Photo contest update: Rabbit has passed the snow donut. Rabbit: 3,027 views; Donut: 2,446 views - http://cli.gs/S9Ya86 about 11 hours ago”

“Uh-oh, more snow forecast on I-90 Friday, Saturday, and Sunday http://cli.gs/XqXp5B12:06 PM Apr 10th” washdems @wsdot Tried PM'ing you, but didn't work so I'll tweet and say thanks about tip about trackable links - cli.gs and budurl.

Twitter: Uses Beyond Conversation

Continuity of operations

Major weather events can cause sudden spikes in traffic to WSDOT’s web site, threatening to overwhelm the site’s servers and leave people without a reliable source of travel information.

Twitter helps ensure continuity of operations by providing the public with an alternative source of information in the event they can’t access WSDOT’s website.

So What’s the Downside?
Twitter: Challenges

- Resources. Like any relationship, Web 2.0 tools demand regular maintenance.
  - The more you tweet, the more people look to see what you have to say.

- Executive support. You have to have it. Without the support of the top management, no Web 2.0 program can be successful.
  - Content must be fresh and often doesn’t stand up to long review process.
  - You’ll have to be ready to hear what the public is saying. Only strong managers are willing to do that.

- Government policies. Government still hasn’t decided how to tackle a couple of issues.
  - What is appropriate to “tweet?”
  - Who is appropriate person to “tweet” on behalf of the agency/organization?
  - How are these discussions archived? Should they be archived?

- Twitter Stability. Social media outsourcing can be risky
  - Don’t rely on just one form of social media - have a back-up plan
Facebook
Beyond Human Resources?

- WSDOT Facebook started........ June 2008
- Total Number of Fans as of September 21, 2009....... 211

Challenges:
- Facebook is only for “Friends and Family”?
- Utilization of Facebook growth: 500,000 new users a day
Summary

- Don’t abandon what works – the traditional tactics are tried and true.
- Don’t wait for an emergency to try something new. Take your time and earn management support.
- Think of the audience and make the social media information relevant to that audience.
- Measure, measure, measure ... your success, or lack of success isn’t just in page views but rather in how the public relates to your crisis.
